

The judges of the land have laid down the law of conspiracy to the effect, that if 10,000 persons have combined for the same purpose, that any two of those, or the whole 10,000, consisting of two's in 5,000 different places, however far apart, and though they never meet or corresponded, nevertheless are all conspirators in an equal degree. I have no hesitation, then, in asserting that Mr. Smith and his class, and those persons, associated together for one end or another, that object is the plunder of the labouring classes; and the Chambers's of Edinburgh are Attorney and Solicitor-General to the conspirators.
 As this tract of the Chambers's is the most villainous, and the most unchristian that has ever yet been published, I am determined not to leave a page, passage, sentence, line, or word in it unanswured. Hitherto, Mr. Chambers has been the bottle-holder of his friend Mr. Smith while he has been training against a kind of mummy, Mr. Jackson. I have this week unrolled the mummy, and breathed a little life into his nostrils; and before I close my commentary, the buffer plucks and the mummy Jackson, shall have changed places.
 Pamphlete, coming from such quarters, are very dangerous, if unheeded and unanswered. In 1841, the League set up the Hon. Rev. Baptist No. 418

THE RATES OF TARIFFS.—Letters from Spain of the 1st inst., confirm the reported execution of Feliciano Zurbano, the eldest son of General Zurbano, who was shot as Logroño on the 28th, along with Captain Baltanas, Zurbano's secretary, and a third person, whose name is not mentioned. General Prim had arrived at Cordova, and was taken from a den by secret police, and was imprisoned until it suited the convenience of his persecutors to send him to the Mariana Islands. His unhappy mother had arrived in Madrid to demand mercy; but in Spain the foundations of mercy have run dry, and the heartless personage who now occupies the throne, has no feeling of compassion left, for the feelings of any mother, whose children are legitimate. The mother of General Prim has been refused access to the two Queens, and it appears that her prayers will be unheard and unanswered, although the poor woman, which she asks is that she may be permitted to see her son, who has been expelled from the milder climate of the Mariana Islands to the almost equally fatal climate of Porto Rico or the Havanna.

for Germany; and the accounts from India not being considered favourable, the yarn market has become exceedingly dull, though, as yet, without any material change in prices. The market for manufactured goods is also inactive, for which the season may sufficiently account. Yesterday there were some rather extensive inquiries for 40-inch shirtings, at low rates; but, we believe, not much business done. Manchester Guardian, of Wednesday.
