

have been holden
between the traders

...for the less fortunate among the workers.
people are in high spirits, and the cause looks bright. A great meeting was held on the 29th which we have received a report, but too late for this issue.

WITH SHIELDS.—Mr. Beesley addressed an enthusiastic meeting of 10,000 or 12,000 persons on Sunday. The spirit of Chartism is rising here, and needed but a few vigorous lectures to bring us up to mark!

BERLIN.—the cause here wears an encouraging aspect. At the usual meeting of the Universal S. F.
Society, on Sunday evening last, the attendance was full; several addresses were presented. Five hes were made, and a general good spirit existed.

NEBURY.—This town, a few days ago, was visited by Mr. William Jones, of Liverpool, and though his lectures were not numerously attended, and to other lecturers and Batty's Circus being in vogue. Those who did attend gave it as their opinion that this style of reasoning is calculated to lighten the understanding and to instruct the more than all the logic of a philosopher—namely, to remain in the hands of the people. His proposition to remain in the country, will be here, at a future future opportunity, will be heard, some doubt, we shall have an audience.

NEBRIDGE (KENT).—The anniversary of the nation of the Association in this place was held at the large room, Chequers Inn, on Monday last, Mr.

in the chair. It was a most spirited and enthusiastic. Some excellent speeches were delivered by Mr. Stead, the Hon. Mr. Elliott, Leigh, and others, and were loudly applauded. Some of the most stirring patriotic songs having been collected from the Free Press and Circular, and adapted to music, sung with great effect by Messrs. Payne, Pugh, and others. Since the formation of the Association, the members have subscribed above £50, the whole of which has been spent in the good cause of the cause of the African race, and has been means of giving a tone to public feeling in the West, for there is no other town surely in the country that can boast so large and so efficient a body as this. We wish them success, and God bless them in their efforts to obtain their rights.

TRAMM MOON.—We have received the following, which, if true, certainly demands the most serious consideration. It is reported that the residents of this place had thought proper to hold a toast at which a person of the name of Wild, a leader in the cause of democracy in that locality, was invited. During the repast a constable, with three or four others, went to the New Cross Inn, where the party was being held, with a warrant for the apprehension of Wild, on a charge of inciting a mob to violence. These entered the hall and immediately commenced flourishing their clubs in a violent and menacing manner. Mr. Wild inquired whether they intended to murder him on the spot, as he was ready to do so without offering any resistance. They then threw him into custody. Mr. Wild, and also her sister, cents; upon whom the most cruel epiphany came, as he saw his wife's face, which was stabbed Mrs. W. beneath the breast, and night have terminated fatally, but for the mors offered by the bone in her stay. Another party fired a pistol, which only just missed, fatal mischief. A person somehow connected with the party, who had himself busy, but his intentions were slightly unkind, and he aimed at the manured first his pistol, which took effect at the neck, and the man instantly fell. Two pables then made off, leaving the prisoner. The was, however, pursued by order of a magistrate, being backed down, was taken into custody, was recaptured very early on this morning, and immediately left the prison, and was released and advanced in pregnancy, and when his father application to the Board of Guardians for some for her, they refused to give her anything. His daughter was also dangerously ill at the time he was dragged to prison, and she has since died. We the people (supposing this statement to be true, we have no means of ascertaining whether it be true) to make their own comments.

MANCHESTER.

REPRESENTERS' HALL.—On Sunday last, two lectures were delivered in the above Hall. Mr. Littler officiated in the afternoon, and Mr. Dixon in the evening. The audience in the afternoon was well attended, and the very fully exposed the admirable system which induced the Indians to submit to starvation, and death, in compliance with the demands of the savages and the bayonets of his soldiers. Mr. Littleton ended by calling upon the hierarchy to continue the war for the Charter peacefully, yet determinedly, or swerving to the right hand or the left, and would ultimately crown their united efforts.

That evening, the Hall was crowded to excess. Mr. Littleton, Mr. Murray, and Mr. Spence, were the first to rise. Mr. Murray called upon the Government to discontinue the war, and Mr. Spence, introduced Mr. Dixon, who addressed the assembled thousands upon the present state of affairs, and cautioned the people against spies and informers. He then made some allusions to the various scoundrel who reside not one hundred miles from London, France, and the streets. This fellow deposed to having addressed the people in the streets of London, and while it was well known to all persons who attended that occasion that Leach was not there at all, cries of "he was not." Mr. Dixon then pressed the Charlists and the people generally, the necessity of rendering all the support in their power to those who may become the victims of tyrannical power, and the necessity of understanding the rights of the people from all exposable articles, and thus cripple government, by stopping the supplies necessary for carrying on the crusade against the rights and liberties of the people. Mr. Dixon retired amidst loud applause.

D. ROSS was loudly called for, who, after a few minutes of the Chairman, came forward, and addressed the immense assemblage in a strain of the unimpassioned eloquence, which completely rivetted tion of his hearers; but as it is impossible to bring like justice to this truly magnificent speaker; suffice it to say, that it must have been to have been appreciated.

Mr. P. M. Brophy, and, after asking permission of the Chairman, read a letter from the British man, of the 27th inst., signed "An Old Chartist;"—er with the Editorial remarks, which drew forth the crowded audience one spontaneous burst of action against the sneaking coward, who has been the part of a concealed, as well as cold-blooded, assassin, and a loud and daring villain. The Statesman, in turn, burns it, and the following resolution was presented by Mr. P. M. Brophy:—

That it is the opinion of this meeting that the letter appears in the Statesman of Saturday the 27th and signed "An Old Chartist," is a gross libel on the character of Feargus O'Connor and the Chartists of the West, and manifestly injurious to the whole cause; and that a letter he wrote calling upon the Editor of the Times to publish the article signed "An Old Chartist," together with an explanation of the editorial remarks in the same paper relative to the charges of treachery and cowardice against us O'Connor, Esq."

g a powerful appeal to the Chartists of Manchester to allow themselves to be driven from their noble agitation for the Charter, by the cry of men in power, or by the base and cowardly calumnies so unblushingly heaped upon the hero of the protest. The patriots that were of all ages or any nation. Mr. Rosa was repeatedly interrupted by the loud plaudits of the vast assembly, by furnishing another proof that O'Connor still lives in the affections of the people of Manchester, while the base, sneaking, and cowardly calumniators are only left for the scorn and contempt of every honest man. The resolution was warmly supported by Mr. Thorne, and carried unanimously.

THOMAS RAILTON moved the following resolution—

Mr. D. Ross do write in the name of this committee to the Editor of the British Statesman concerning this matter, to request him to give his views on the Statesman's report of last Saturday; and also, that the resolutions be sent to the North British Statesman for insertion."

The resolution being seconded from the body of the church was carried nem. con.

On the thanks of the meeting had been voted to the chairman, the vast assemblage dispersed in a peaceful manner.

Next day, Tuesday afternoon, four o'clock.

James Leach has at length been liberated after possible impediment had been thrown in the way of his bail by the wanton neglect of the officers sought to have seen after them. Mr. Leach's was tendered on Friday evening last, and yet to say, he has had to remain in the New Billerica Jail (Tuesday) and the only reason for this was that the officers were waiting for the order of the officer, to go and examine the ball's value. Turner and Mr. Hutchinson were liberated at the same time.

Turner and Seddon were again brought up for examination, when there was no evidence against them. This is the fourth time that they have been brought up and no evidence against them, have been in prison a fortnight, a thing unprecedented in Courts of Justice in this country. Our readers naturally conclude that Messrs. Tinker and Seddon are dismissed; as there was no evidence; such, how-

Yardley from Oldham, had not been brought up we left at four o'clock; they were waiting at one of the Oldham Magistrates to be present at examination.

NEWSPAPER

STANDARD
NORTHERN

s. 9d., and family boxes 11s. each. Full directions are given with each box.

